Nurse Points Out Ways to Combat Flu

All students are urged to be alert for the first signs and symptoms of a common cold, since they are also the first signs of the early stages of the flu, Ennie Brough said.

A severe flu epidemic has been hitting great numbers of persons in Provo and the county, and a large number of students are reportedly afflicted, Miss Brough said.

"One, two, or three days home during the beginning days of the flu is worth a lot more than two weeks in bed later on," she declared, urging the students to drink water and fruit juices, eat well-balanced food, and get plenty of rest in order to combat this epidemic.

Following these simple rules will help to avoid the serious complications and most likely will set in, she warned.

Recommendations of the early stages are a sore throat, headache, stuffy nose, and general all over aching.

Students are urged to give this problem their best attention.

Vet Aids Available

Proposing for a substantial increase in retirement of veterans being given, Professor James K. Remery, supervisor of the veterans' program at Brigham Young University, is talking today to provide special assistance to those men, Dr. Wesley P. Lloyd, dean of students and director of special services, reported today.

Professor Remery has direct experience with the GI and the Rehabilitation Veterans' programs. His records show that enrollment of veterans this quarter has increased by about fifty per cent since the opening of the program.

Men from army, navy, marine and other branches of the armed services continue to register. With the rapid declassification program now underway, a real increase is expected with the opening of the winter quarter.

The age of BYU veterans ranges from infants to forty years, and includes nearly all varieties of military service, Prof. Remery said.

The campus organization is prepared to make the University of Veterans' program this money as well as $100 per $175 for each child; also, there is credit for physical education, one hour of health, and one hour of military science for any veteran with basic training; also, special training and experience are evaluated and college credit given on the basis of recommendations of the American Council on Education.

Some proposal from the group concerning approval or disapproval of the bills pending in congress will undoubtedly be made during the evening, he declared.

While Dr. Eyring and Dr. Tanner will lead the discussion, the meeting will be thrown open to questions and general discussion. All interested in the subject are welcome to attend.

Faculty Adjusts Academic Rules

Resolutions establishing examination week, regulating the time for late registrants and permitting students to take 18 hours of university credit in the summer upon approval of the academic dean have been passed by the Brigham Young University Council, it was announced today by Howard S. McDonald, president.

The decision calling for setting up of an examination week requires that examinations in all classes be given during the final three calendar days of each quarter.

The resolution regulating the academic load for late registrants specifies that no student be registered after the end of the third week of each quarter except upon approval of the academic dean. Students registering after the end of the third week will be permitted to take a number of credits but not more than 18 hours in the year.

The requirement that students register to take classes in excess of 18 hours of university credit will be approved by a new resolution which will permit students to take 18 hours of credit with approval of their academic dean. This resolution also specifies that 18 hours of credit be taken as the normal academic load per quarter.

By the requirement that students of superior rating must attend school a minimum of 11 quarters to graduate and that students must have a superior rating stated in grade 12.

With the entire proceeds going to the fund for the student union building, the annual sophomore loan fund ball is set for Friday at 8 p. m. in the South ballroom with Col. Shadle orchestra, according to Artel S. Ball, sophomore class president and general chairman.

Admission will be by invitation, received on receipt of a contribution, admission of $2, for the student union fund.

All decorations, tickets, and programs will be sold until dance time, according to Mr. Ball. A committee of about 20 is being planned.

Tickets may be obtained from Mr. Thompson, vice-president; Colleen Page, secretary, or Mr. Ball. Other members of the steering committee are John Sparley and Dr. Carl F. Eyring.

Other committee members are: William Harding, first vice-president; Jerry Zeigler, John Christensen, Charles Harding, first vice-president; and Jerry Zeigler, John Christensen, Charles Harding, first vice-president.

This ball will off the campus drive for funds for the student union building.

New Housing Regulations

A new procedure recently adopted by the faculty will require that all students must close with the housing office in order to avoid any change of residence.

The regulation is in order that the university may have an accurate record of the location of all students, and in order that parents may be properly advised as to the location of their children.

Each student who has a schedule change is asked to call to Professor R. F. Cummings, housing chairman, in order to make proper changes.

In the approaching of Winter Quarter registration Professor Cummings will be in the office to give information on housing in need of being occupied by students.

The committee on housing is now at work, making available place for the anticipated increase in enrollment. The Winter quarter enrollment promises to represent one of the greatest single quarter increases during a year in the history of the university.

Christensen Explains Confusion Problems

By A. Christensen

The entire Brigham Young University to competition in all major intercollegiate sports perhaps justifies a statement from me about a current problem in our college sports relations. The meetings of the Mountain States Athletic Conference held last weekend indicate one of the difficulties of making a football schedule satisfactory to Denver University and also to the other schools in the conference, particularly if the schedule is to provide for every school in the conference a game with every other school.

The heart of the problem is Denver's financial condition. About twenty years ago Denver University built a huge, concrete stadium. Up to the present time such receipts have paid little more than the interest on the indebtedness. If Denver is to make a schedule in which it must in some way increase its athletic income, particularly in football, it must, therefore, make schedules with its eye always on the drawing power of its opponents, and on the dates most favorable to large crowds. More specifically, it must bring to Denver in early season at least some several outstanding non-conference teams.

Denver argues that it cannot secure such teams and still accommodate on its schedule all of the schools in the conference. Since some of the schools are better than the best money makes for football, it is not surprising that they are exhibited in its football tradition. Very clearly, it is not a matter of being in schedule making. Denver is the only school which has the ability to play schools both at its convenience or to its advantage.

Denver's fortune and misfortune is the city of its own. Had the school been founded in a small town, it perhaps would have built steadily and met its obligations without too much pain. On the other hand, it may not now be holding the way much over schools which are in its debt and make schedules in conference in order to clear their names in its big-name crowd.

What the outcome of the existing impasse will be no one knows. There is some hope, however, if anyone is interested in them, and if the other schools in the conference are in their as in another line.

Army clinched one of the greatest seasons in history when Col. Blake's Cadets drove through the Navy's Midships to win the annual classic 32-13. A crowd of 102,000, including President Truman, saw a genuine dog fight as Blanchard carried the ship to the end zone three times and Davis twice.

One tenth of a million grid fans saw USC win her third consecutive bid into the Rose Bowl last Saturday when she defeated the UCLA Bruins 15 to 13. Although a maintenance-free undefeated title, drubbing Mississippi State 55 to 13. USC will have her first full when she meets Alabama on January 1 at Pasadena.

Independent teams for basketball intramurals are to be organized and scheduled by December 10. Turn in your list to Jackie at Coach Miller's petty secretary, Wyline, in the men's gym.

Paul Theobald, a freshman from Delta high has just started school and is working out with the team. Paul is an outstanding track star as well. Junior Child is back and has been working out with the Varsity. He earned his freshman number here in '42, and has since been playing ball for the Marines, having spent much time at Colorado college.

Ladies interested in bowling should organize your independent league of three members and begin practicing from 4 to 6 p. m. daily. Tournament starts December 10, and runs to December 18.

Personalities in Sports . . . Meade Squire

Do you remember the extremely tall 6 foot 7 1/2 inch giant in the Junior Varsity-Weber game last Saturday night, and who also shined in the Y vs. Alumni game? That was "Tiny" Squires, No. 13. Not only one of the tallest men on the squad, but the heaviest. This 239 pound Manti soil lifter is a freshman this year and promises to be one of the main stays on Coach Miller's lineup.

Meade played four years of varsity basketball at Manti high, where he was also active in track. His academic interests here at the Y center around agriculture, with minor interests in history and geography. Upon completion of his college training, he expects to return to the Manti farm and his "back home gal."

Next to basketball he likes to be taken out by NL goats with hot chocolate and doughnuts to atop-off the evening. For a cordial and interesting athlete who goes to assemblies—get better acquainted with Meade "Tiny" Squires.

good time? Affectionately, Johnny.

Last week's popularity survey was taken and some of the results were very interesting. One to find out, R. D. doesn't believe in signs anymore. He spent his time trying to get rid of balloons and then found out he was unpopular anyway.

When S. H. was asked why she was so popular she said, "I know something about a list. Knowing all girls would be interested in her secret, she was asked just what her list was."

The line of best resistance. And to top them all R. S. gave his popularity with 100 percent statement and a quote, "If I should die tonight, at least I would know I would go back in circulation again sometime."

Cougars

By Russell D. Grange

BY Junior Varsity trimmed the scrappy, but out played Weber college 61 to 34 in the opening game of the season in last Saturday evening's game. The main attraction of the evening was the annual classic, where the tables were turned this year by a small margin, and the over-sized and under-trained alumni edged out the Y Varsity in a torrid 62 to 61 battle.

The team of some ten men left yesterday for their northern road robin through Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. December 6 they meet Wyoming 11. The next evening Montana State college will clash with the Cougars. While on the 8th we will play the winner of the Montana V-Ywoming game. On the 10th, Idaho Southern will enter the arena to match their skills with that of the Cougars. The trip will take one week. Our next full scale game will be here the 15th with Wendover Air Base.

Forget the games on the sixth and seventh when Junior Varsity will play BAC on our local hardwood. Games to be played behind closed doors in the men's gym.

The annual Smokeless Smoker is scheduled to get under way Friday night in the Women's gym. The details will be found in the accompanying article. The current-year old exhibition battle is a "should see." The AMS promises an outstanding achievement this year.

Mr. McWilliams has always had a deep interest in the underprivileged, as shown in his books "The Farther Shore" and "The People of the Fields." He is the agricultural writer of the National Farm Bureau, and has made an extensive study of the rural situation in this country. He has been a frequent speaker at the National Farm Bureau, and has been a frequent speaker at the National Farm Bureau, and has been a frequent speaker at the National Farm Bureau.

He has also discussed these questions over the radio, twice on the Chicago Round Table, and three times on the Town Meeting of the Air.

In 1940 he became president of the Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born, and was awarded the Guggenheim Fellowship in 1941.

He practiced law in California where formerly he was Commissioner of Immigration and Housing.

He will be introduced by Dr. Arl S. Burt, professor of sociology at BYU.
